All:

I just got off the phone with my Mom. As you know last year around November she was diagnosed with leukemia. When they went to do more blood work and testing to determine her treatment path - they halted it because her platelet count had gone UP 7000 points. That was mid-December. The doctors told her they would have to do blood work every month to determine what was happening. She went today and her platelet count was up 19000 points! She is almost to the normal level. The only thing she has been doing differently is drinking the Re:Plenish juice. I am so thankful to God and to Amy's company and Amy and to my mom for trying the product when first diagnosed. The doctor said she does not have to come back for 6 months!!!

I am in tears writing this - so, I better go get a tissue before someone walks in my office!

A very grateful servant,
